

Great examples from digital schools in my home country, New Zealand

Copyright Gordon Dryden and The Learning Web Limited 2011

5-year-olds create computer-art, then simple animations.

Copyright Gordon Dryden and The Learning Web Limited 2011

6-year-olds, on their first day in first grade, shoot videos.

Compose digital music, graphics.

Copyright Gordon Dryden and The Learning Web Limited 2011

On day 2 they learn to edit video.

Copyright Gordon Dryden and The Learning Web Limited 2011

Then advanced 3D animations.

After-school fun: learn animation instead of memorizing textbooks.

Copyright Gordon Dryden and The Learning Web Limited 2011

Some primary schools start each day producing their own TV news show.

How to use the entire world as a classroom.

Copyright Gordon Dryden and The Learning Web Limited 2011

At first 100% digital schools . . .

Asian students teach their teachers new tricks

Copyright Gordon Dryden and The Learning Web Limited 2011

Students even interview Minister of Education on school radio station

Copyright Gordon Dryden and The Learning Web Limited 2011

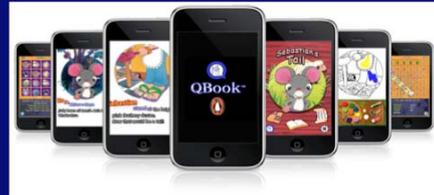

Invercargill, New Zealand: world's first city with an interactive digital whiteboard in every classroom.

Now with $4 Apple iPad/iPod-touch app you can turn your iPad into $3000 interactive digital whiteboard.

Copyright Gordon Dryden and The Learning Web Limited 2011

And those animated books that talk to you in four languages.

You can also record your own voice, learning to speak perfect English from age three onwards.

Copyright Gordon Dryden and The Learning Web Limited 2011

Easy way to learn digital-tech and English together.

Digital photography

Video camera work

Skype video-phoning

80% of New Zealand teachers have now been retrained by others who know how.

Copyright Gordon Dryden and The Learning Web Limited 2011